“ John and I were cousins. We became close friends in 1983 and spent the next 30 years in close contact with each other. I and my family spent many days and nights with John in his home in Sherman, Texas. John was always kind to my family and welcomed my wife Cheryl and my daughters, Rachel, Sarah and Emily into his home filled with beautiful furniture and his prized owl collection. John was an excellent cook and always enjoyed making us dinner and breakfast. In years later, I would visit John with my grandchildren and they still recall how they enjoyed visiting and knowing John and how kind he was to them. John and I loved to go bowling and we would often bowl at the bowling alley in Sherman, Texas where John would always beat me even when I was at the top of my game. In 1994, John and I took a trip together to Los Angeles, California and spent a week there. On one day, we drove to Victorville, California where Roy Rogers lived. We both held Roy Rogers as our childhood hero and we wanted to visit his museum and see if there was any chance to meet him. We were about to leave the museum when Roy Rogers came walking in and we both got to meet him, give him a firm handshake and a hug! It was a dream come true for both of us. John is gone now but I will never forget him.
